NEW QUESTION: 1

Your company has a main office and two branch offices. The main office is located in New York. The branch offices are located in Seattle and Chicago.

The network contains an Active Directory domain named contoso.com. An Active Directory site exists for each office. Active Directory site links exist between the main office and the branch offices. All servers run Windows Server 2012. The domain contains three file servers. The file servers are configured as shown in the following table.

You implement a Distributed File System (DFS) replication group named ReplGroup.

ReplGroup is used to replicate a folder on each file server. ReplGroup uses a hub and spoke topology. NYC-SVR1 is configured as the hub server. You need to ensure that replication can occur if NYC-SVR1 fails.

What should you do?

- A. Create an Active Directory site link.
- B. Modify the properties of ReplGroup.
- C. Create a connection in ReplGroup.
- D. Create an Active Directory site link bridge.

Answer: C

NEW QUESTION: 2

An organization wants to deploy applications that can programmatically alter network behavior. In addition, they want to deploy additional network services in real-time.

Which cloud-management component should be included in the design to support this requirement?

- A. Network Management Controller
- B. Hypervisor Element Manager
- C. Software-Defined Network Controller
- D. Virtual Switch Manager

Answer: C

Explanation:

An SDN controller is an application in software-defined networking (SDN) that manages flow control to enable intelligent networking. SDN controllers are based on protocols, such as OpenFlow, that allow servers to tell switches where to send packets. In effect, the SDN controller serves as a sort of operating system (OS) for the network. By taking the control plane off the network hardware and running it as software instead, the controller facilitates automated network management and makes it easier to integrate and administer business applications.
