NEW QUESTION: 2

Which statements about reflexive access lists are true? (Choose three.)

- A. Reflexive access lists support UDP sessions
- B. Reflexive access lists can be attached to standard named IP ACLs
- C. Reflexive access lists can be attached to extended named IP ACLs
- D. Reflexive access lists support TCP sessions
- E. Reflexive access lists approximate session filtering using the established keyword
- F. Reflexive access lists create a permanent ACE

Answer: A,C,D

Explanation:

Explanation

To define a reflexive access list, you use an entry in an extended named IP access list. This entry must use the reflect keyword.

A reflexive access list is triggered when a new IP upper-layer session (such as TCP or UDP) is initiated from inside your network, with a packet traveling to the external network.

Moreover,

the previous method of using the established keyword was available only for the TCP upper-layer protocol.

So, for the other upper-layer protocols (such as UDP, ICMP, and so forth), you would have to either permit all incoming traffic or define all possible permissible source/destination host/port address pairs for each protocol. (Besides being an unmanageable task, this could exhaust NVRAM space.) Source:
