NEW QUESTION: 1

Your network contains an Active Directory forest named contoso.com.

The forest contains an enterprise root certification authority (CA) named CA1.

The network contains a server named EX1 that has Exchange Server 2013 installed.

A partner company named A.Datum Corporation has an Active Directory domain named adatum.com.

The domain contains a server named EX5 that has Exchange Server installed. EX5 has a Receive connector that is configured for mutual TLS.

2010 Service Pack 2 (SP2)

Users in contoso.com plan to send email messages that contain sensitive data to users in adatum.com.

You need to ensure that all of the email messages sent from contoso.com to adatum.com are encrypted by using TLS. The solution must ensure that EX1 and EX5 validate server certificates.

Which three actions should you perform? (Each correct answer presents part of the solution. Choose three.)

- A. Run the New-SendConnector cmdlet and specify the `tlsdomainparameter`.
- B. Run the New-SendConnector cmdlet and specify the `domainsecureenabled` parameter.
- C. Install a certificate, and then assign the certificate to the IIS service. Send the root certificate for contoso.com to the administrators in adatum.com.
- D. Run the `set-transportconfig -tlssenddomainsecurelist contoso.com` command.
- E. Install a certificate, and then assign the certificate to the SMTP service. Send the root certificate for contoso.com to the administrators in adatum.com.
- F. Run the `set-transportconfig -tlssenddomainsecurelist adatum.com` command.

Answer: A,D,E

Explanation:

A: Use the `Set-TransportConfig` cmdlet to modify the transport configuration settings for the whole Exchange organization. The `TLSSendDomainSecureList` parameter specifies the domains from which you want to send domain secured email by using mutual TLS authentication.

In this scenario we send from EX1 in the contoso.com domain.

D: Need to create a new send connector.

The `TlsDomain` parameter specifies the domain name that the Send connector uses to verify the FQDN of the target certificate when establishing a TLS secured connection.

F: A new certificate is needed for the SMTP service.
